FOREWORD

FOR more than sixty years I have been studying the life and character of Abraham Lincoln. I have not sought to delve into any mysticisms or superstitions, nor to attribute any supernatural causes contributing to the formation of his remarkable career.

He was intensely human and possessed a kind and forgiving nature that should never be called in question. It was like unto the following: "Then Peter came to him and said, Lord how oft shall my brother sin against me and I forgive him—'till seven times?" Jesus saith unto him, "I say not unto thee until seven times, but until seventy times seven." I believe the answer which Jesus made, to have been the ruling spirit of Mr. Lincoln towards his fellow beings, friends and enemies—for he said, "With malice towards none, with charity for all."

I confess to surprise and even amazement at the frequent mention of periods of seven (7) and its multiples, which are too often, to be considered as coincidences, appearing in his life; and it is owing to this fact, that I jotted down from time to time, and year to year, the data contained in this booklet.

A volume could be filled with the multiples of 7 incidents, which occurred in the busy and eventful life of the immortal Lincoln.

OSBORN H. OLDROYD.

THE NUMBER SEVEN-(7)

Concerning the Creation of the world, the Bible says: "And on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made, and He rested on the seventh (7) day from all his work which he had made." Gen. 2:2.

Seven has always been a holy number, and that is why it is regarded as a lucky number. All the Jewish rites were accommodated to the number 7. Every 7th year was sabbatical for the Jews. The three great feasts of the Jews each lasted 7 days, and 7 weeks elapsed between the first and second. There are seven divisions of the Lord's prayer. There are seven (7) commandments respecting man, and the church formed various septenaries.

The Brahmans and Egyptians used the number 7; the Greek fathers extolled its power and efficacy, and the Latin apply it to superstitious purposes.

Archbishop Peckham's Constitutions, made at Lambeth, A. D., 1281, states, the Most High hath created a medicine for the body of man, repositied in 7 vessels, that is, the 7 sacraments of the church. There are 7 articles of faith belonging to the mystery of the Trinity; and 7 articles belonging to Christ's humanity.

The Irish entertain a similar veneration for the number 7; the 7 churches at Glendaloch, and the 7 altars of Clonfort and Holy Cross.

The book of Revelations in the Bible, from the first to the fifteenth chapters, reveals the use of the number 7 as follows:

There were 7 lamps of fire burning before the throne.

The back of the book was sealed with 7 seals.

Stood a lamb having 7 horns and 7 eyes.

Seven (7) thunders uttered their voices.

A beast rose out of the sea having 7 heads.

I saw 7 angels having the 7 last plagues.

The 7 Deadly Sins, are pride, wrath, envy, lust, gluttony, avarice and sloth.

The 7 Virtues—faith, hope, charity, prudence, justice, fortitude and temperance.

There are 7 books or bibles of the world, the Bible of the Christians; The Eddas of the Scandinavians; the Five Kings of the Chinese; The Koran of the Moham-medans; the Tri Pitikes of the Buddhists; The Vedas of the Hindus; and the Zandavesta of the Persians.

The 7 churches of Asia, were located at Ephesus, Smyrna, Pergamos, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia and Laodicea.

Seven (7) angels stand before the throne of God,—Michael, Gabriel, Raphael, Zachariel, Ansel and Oriphele.

The Deity is endowed with 7 spirits: the Spirit of Wisdom, the Spirit of Understanding, the Spirit of Counsel, the Spirit of Power, the Spirit of Righteousness, the Spirit of Knowledge, and the Spirit of Divine Awfulness.

In the life of the Virgin Mary, there were 7 joys and 7 sorrows. The 7 Joys were, the Annunciation, the Visitation, the Nativity, the Adoration of the Magi, the presentation in the temple and finding of Christ among the doctors, and the Assumption.

SUPERSTITION OR COINCIDENCE

There are many good people who believe in superstitions, and others who do not, but attribute all unaccountable or unusual happenings to coincidence.

The person who harbors a dread of the supernatural or has a fear of the unknown or mysterious, or indulges an ignorant or irrational worship of the Supreme Deity, or who practices excessive exactness or rigor in religious opinions or worships a false god, false religion or a rite or practice arising from such worship, or who believes in the direct agency of superior powers in certain extraordinary events or in magic, omens etc.—is a superstitious person, regardless of any and all disclaimers to the contrary.

They who dismiss all superstition from their minds under the cloak of coincidence, and attribute to mysticism all that is not apparent or explainable,—their conclusions may be as irrational as those of the Superstitious.

“God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform.”

Abraham Lincoln, born in a rude log cabin of humble parentage, and having had only one year's schooling, rises to the Presidency of a great nation.

Bible taught by his mother—who will say that the mysterious way of the Almighty, did not shape his destiny.

WM. BURTON BENHAM.

WE ARE SEVEN

WORDSWORTH

Sisters and brothers little Maid,
How many may you be?
"How many?" "Seven in all," she said,
And wondering looked at me.

Two of us in the churchyard lie,
My sister and my brother;
And in the churchyard cottage I
Dwell near them with my mother.

How many are you then, said I
If two are now in heaven?
Quick was the little Maid's reply,
O, Master! We are seven.

But they are dead; those two are dead!
Their spirits are in heaven!
"Twas throwing words away; for still
The little Maid would have her will,
And said, "Nay we are seven."
